COURSE FOCUS

This 1 module (3 CE credit) course introduces nurses to the Prosci ADKAR Model which provides a guide for leaders to support individual change within organizations. The focus of this model is on the individual person, since all successful change occurs at the personal level where people involved in the change move through stages of acceptance and action. ADKAR is an acronym for the five stages of the model which include Awareness, Desire, Knowledge, Ability and Reinforcement.

This online course consists of a lesson, assigned readings and supportive media, and is evaluated by completing a multiple-choice final examination

OBJECTIVES

Learners will be able to:

- Identify the characteristics of the five stages of the Prosci ADKAR Model.

- Recognize the suitability and application of the Prosci ADKAR Model in the field of nursing informatics specialization.

- Describe the process that ensures change adaptation through use of the Prosci ADKAR Model.

- Transpose the Prosci ADKAR Model to their own development within the field of nursing informatics.
